European Robotics Week 2015

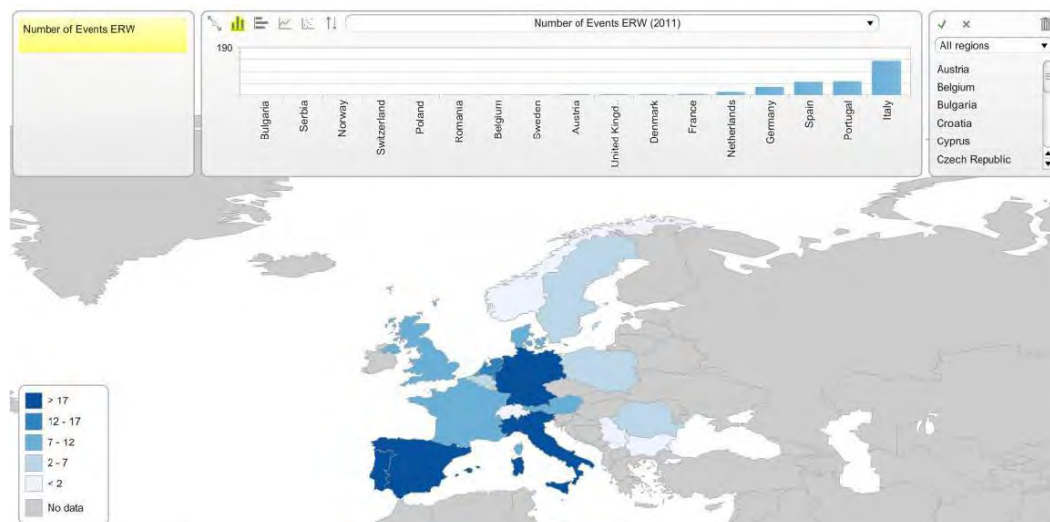

The history for the European Robotics Week is one of growing success. Conceived at the European Robotics Forum 2011, ERW was the desire of the European Robotics community wanting to bring robotics research and development closer to the European public.

During the first ERW2011 about 80,000 people participated in over 360 robotics related activities that took place in 19 European countries. The second ERW2012 was also a Pan-European success, with circa 30,000 people participating in over 200 robotics related activities among 21 European countries. The third ERW2013 saw a huge increase, having over 60,000 people participating in over 300 robotics related activities.

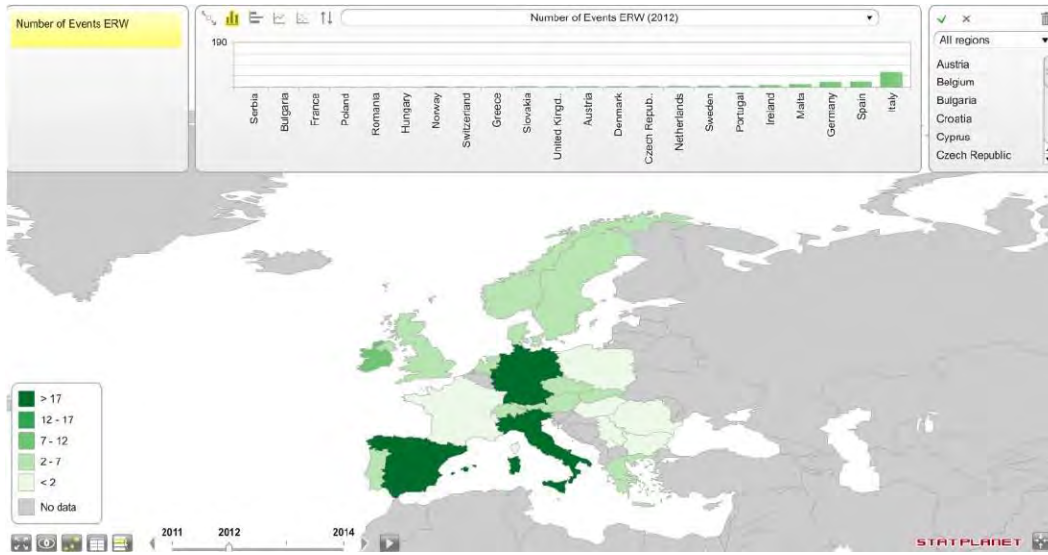

As strong as the first years were, the ERW2014 broke all previous records counting almost 500 robotics related events in 22 European and associate countries. For the first time ever, Croatia, the newest member of the European Union, and Israel participated in the European Robotics Week. An estimated number of over 70,000 people attended all the events, from children to adults, showing that the science of robotics is gaining traction and our objectives are being attained.

The development of the European Robotics Week is pictured below, before it peaks in the record breaking numbers of this year's ERW2015 and a short summary of the week.

ERW 2015

The European Robotics Week 2015 (ERW2015) has again broken all previous records and grown to around 750 participating events in 31 countries. The pan-European events celebrate Europe as a leader in Robotics technology development, and have allowed citizens to explore the impact on the way we work, live, and learn both now and in the future.

This year's event was attended by 30,000 people, and in just five years it has attracted over 200,000 participants of all ages, however, these figures are likely to be much higher. Since 2011, ERW has continually inspiring students to pursue careers in robotics and other Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math-related fields.

Central Event in Bristol

This year, the heart of the European Robotics Week was a series of events in Bristol UK organised by euRobotics AISBL and the Bristol Robotics Laboratory. The festivities began with an eye-opening debate on “Robots and Society” in the UK city of Bristol on Tuesday, with experts versed in strategy, business, academia, law and policy discussing robotics and economy and robotics and ethics in two panel debates.

Bridging the gap between cutting-edge research in academia and the vibrant robotics start-up ecosystem was the subject of the “Robots: From Imagination to Market” event on the second day in Bristol with leading UK and EU innovators, researchers, start-ups and strategists. There was more: the day finished with a robot build-a-thon, where kids aged 5-14 years helped researchers build 100 robots to ‘treat’ artificial cancer cells.

Country by Country

Austria

The ERW 2015 events were spread all over Austria, with the main activities taking place in Klagenfurt, where actually almost the whole week was covered with events ranging from talks and workshops to open days and competitions.

The event organiser Samira Hayat explains her motivation for organising the week: "I am working with Robotics myself and really wanted to bring together the Robotics community here, and bring to public (especially kids and university students) the Robotics research activities going on in Klagenfurt."

With all the events going on, she did not only accomplish this, but also received quite some media coverage. She invited four professors, who are all working in some capacity with robotics (Dr. Michael Hofbaur - Joanneum Research, Prof. Bernhard Rinner - Pervasive computing, Prof. Stephan Weiss - Control of Networked Systems, Prof. Christian Bettstetter - Mobile systems) to give talks and an open lab tour at their institute.

There was also an Informatics Workshop organized for School kids by the Informatics and Didactics Institute which was also included as part of the Robotics Week. The finale was a competition, where two leagues (Junior and Senior), developed their Mindstorm Robots and programmed them to compete at three challenges. The photos taken by IEEE student branch can be found here. Joanneum Research also kindly made a video, which is short but shows the essence of the event. Samira Hayat summarises her efforts: "All in all, I can really say that the effort paid off. I am glad to say that many people were inspired by the event and told me that they would like a similar event to happen again next year. I already have many ideas for the next year!"

France

The events of the ERW 2015 were spread literally all over the country and reached many French people, from school kids to interested adults. France also saw plenty of robotic challenges, many of those belonging to the R2T2, a collaborative rescue action at the crossroads between education, robotics and space exploration.

The scenario of a rescue after a disaster on Mars could be the one of the movie « The Martian ». But here everything, except Mars, is true: remote controlled robots, communication delays due to distance, teams of robot operators that are thousands of kilometres away from each other but working together to succeed in their mission. There is just one small detail, there are more than 100 operators and all of them are between 8 and 16 years old and learning how to programme a robot. During the event, 16 teams will be distributed in across Switzerland, Austria, France, Italy, Russia and South Africa.

This world first international cooperation in education based on a cooperative rescue task is organized by the Swiss National Center of Competence in Research (NCCR) Robotics. R2T2 takes advantage of the Thymio robot, a teaching tool developed in the NCCR Robotics.

In Nogent sur Marne the first workshop of the EUropean Robotic LABoratory took place where students with the age of 16 to19 got to know new ways of learning and innovative content: mind maps, learning by doing, collaborative learning, Computer Aided Design, Arduino, CATIA Composer, 3DExperience from Dassault Systèmes, Rapid prototyping.

The Laboratoire Le2i in Chalon-sur-Saone organised an exhibition where the Vision & Robotics Lab gave live demos of robots at the Village des Sciences. Indoor Mobile Ground robots & NAO Humanoid robot have been on display for the interested visitors.

Germany

Germany can be seen as the newcomer of ERW 2015. With only 15 events in the previous year, they now ramped up their efforts and reached 61 events spread all over Germany this year.

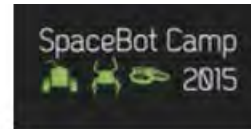

In Dortmund the opening of the year-long robot exhibition at the DASA museum coincided with the start of the European Robotics Week and on the opening day alone almost 3.000 visitors were registered in Dortmund. A video of the exhibition can be found here. The exhibition addresses the general public, both old and young people interested in robotics.

At the FIRST® LEGO® League (FLL) a special focus lies on children and young students. During the ERW 2015 the first regional challenges took place all over Germany. More than 200 teams in 15 regions in Germany were taking part in the special challenge. In the 14th year of the competition, more than 850 teams in Europe have to face several tasks before they find their champions in March 2016 in Debrecen, Hungary. In this video the Trask Trek challenge is shown, where the robot has to clean up a table.

The final of the challenge in Dresden has been filmed as well. A conference on robot ethics was organised by the Daimler-Benz-Stiftung in Berlin. A different perspective had the Roberta teacher training, where high school teachers were themselves taught on how to use the software and hardware kits and how to spark the enthusiasm for robotics in children.

Yet another kind of event was organised by the Department for Cognitive Systems at the Technical University in Munich. Their open day offered visitors the possibility to take a look at their humanoid robots H-1, the ICub, Robot TOMM with his human like skin and the dancing Naos.

Greece

In Greece many robotic related activities took place during the ERW 2015. Several workshops and educational reach-outs spread the word of the importance of robotics just as much as an open house of the Robotic Team Kouretes in Chania. The 7th high school of Trikala organised a challenge in der Robotics Laboratory. As part of the European Week of Robotics, twenty-five students of the school involved in Research Work "Robotics: I design, I create, I plan ", divided into 6 groups (ROBOMANIACS, ROBONERDS, ROBOTDEALERS, BRAINIACS, ROBOLICIUS and SABOTAGE) built and programmed a robot to follow the black line sequence. Each group had free trials to work on the robot and program the robot to follow the black line as accurate and fast as possible. Then each team did two timed efforts. RoboNerds, the winner, had their robot follow the curved black line with an average time of 7.77 seconds. A video from the event can be seen on YouTube.

Hungary

The variety of events in Hungary is exemplary for the European Robotics Week as a whole. The Mechatronics, Optics and Engineering Informatics department of the Budapest University of Technology and Economics organised the Micromouse Contest. Its goal is to have an autonomous robot running through a designated maze to compete for intelligence and speed. Another competition took place in the warehouses of FPVRace Hungary where quadcopters were racing each other, as you can see in this video.

The MTA SZTAKI in Budapest offered several Open Houses where interested people could learn more about smart factory with mobile robots and how flying robots can sense the environment.

During the ERW 2015 the first regional challenges took place all over Hungary. In the 14th year of the competition, more than 850 teams in Europe have to face several tasks before they find their champions in March 2016 in Debrecen, Hungary. This year - with more than 5000 visitors - even a new robotics challenge took place.

At the Ericsson Roboskicc Challenge 2015 children made almost 500 drawing robots and participated in setting the world record for the biggest picture drawn by drawbots. A video of the event can be found here.

At the Robotics and Artificial Intelligence Day (Budapest) IT robotics and artificial intelligence Universities students, teachers and researchers interested in the topic, developers, and multinational companies presented their achievements, their successes. Among others one of the developers of Puli Space Technologies

Slovenia

As the host for the 2016 European Robotics Forum, Slovenia was also very active during the European Robotics Week. Hub of all action was Ljubljana, which will also be the host city of the ERF in March 2016. During the week they paid special attention to Biorobotics, which “brings solutions that will render modern life much easier” and important research projects in this field.

Biorobotics focuses on the research and development of robots that imitate biological systems or rather work with humans. Prof. Matjaž Mihelj from the Laboratory of Robotics (Robolab) at the Faculty of Electrical Engineering, University of Ljubljana, has among others collaborated with researchers from the prestigious ETH University in Zurich in developing the exoskeleton ARMIN, which enables paralysed arm training and points to new opportunities of cooperation between man and the robot.

An educational out-reach for children aged 12-18 was organised by the Faculty of Computer and Information Science at the University of Ljubljana. Here children learned how mobile robots work. They were invited to look through the robot’s eyes and navigate the robot around the scene only by observing the outputs of the robot sensors. In addition they visually programmed the robot to solve simple robotic tasks.

Spain

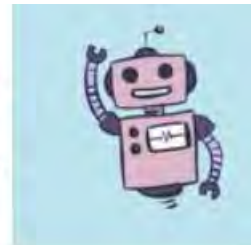

Spain was once more the undisputed leader in regard to the number of organised events during the ERW20105. Almost 380 events took place all over the country sweeping kids, students and adults alike away to the world of robotics. The range of activities varied and included visits to companies like the students of IES Federico García Lorca were allowed to sneak a peek behind the scenes of the company Tecnatom. Here you can read the whole story.

Also very popular was the possibility to watch Hangout, where two online plenary discussions with experts from several fields were streamed. Both can still be watched online: “El pensamiento robótico que soñamos para...” and “El pensamiento robótico: conectando con las aulas”. The Universidad Carlos III de Madrid offered 6th class students from the Miguel de Cervantes school in Leganés a guided tour through their robotics lab. Here you can see a video of the tour.

These were only three examples of the many possibilities Spanish people were offered during ERW2015 to come in contact with robots. In the following pages you will find the complete list of events that took place during the Spanish European Robotics Week 2015.

European Robotics Week 2015 breaks all records with around 750 events in 31 countries

http://cordis.europa.eu/news/rcn/129454_en.html

Brussels, 30 November 2015 - The European Robotics Week 2015 (ERW2015) has again broken all records and counted around 750 events in 31 countries. The pan-European events celebrate Europe as a leader in Robotics technology development, and have allowed citizens to explore the impact on the way we work, live, and learn both now and in the future.

This year's event was attended by 30,000 people, and in just five years it has attracted over 200,000 participants of all ages, continually inspiring students to pursue careers in robotics and other Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math-related fields.

"The European Robotics Week is an opportunity for all regions, both genders, and all age-groups to radiate excitement about robots. ERW extends also into entrepreneurship and start-ups, by emphasizing creativity and advocates for increased funding for robotics technology research and development. The European Society needs to be involved in the process of inventions and turning to robots; this is a political necessity", explained Uwe Haass, Acting Secretary General of euRobotics, the main organiser of ERW2015.

Major Debate on Robots and Society, Bristol, UK

This year, the heart of the European Robotics Week was a series of events in Bristol, UK organised by euRobotics AISBL and the Bristol Robotics Laboratory. The highlight was a debate with leading European and UK experts on "Robots and Society". The debate was opened by Mady Delvaux – Member of the European Parliament, Uwe Haass – euRobotics, Chris Melhuish - Bristol Robotics Laboratory, and Amanda Deeks - South Gloucestershire Council.

See a report of the debate by RoboHub: www.robohub.org/major-debate-on-robots-society-sets-scene-for-erw2015-european-robotics-week/

All videos of the events in Bristol will be available shortly on the euRobotics YouTube channel: www.youtube.com/user/euRobotics

The Bristol audience then joined a full-day workshop on translating the latest research in robotics to market, and a buildathon where kids helped build 100 robots to "treat cancer".

Country highlights

- A consultation on biorobotics focusing on the cooperation between man and robot took place at the Slovenian Academy of Sciences and Arts, Ljubljana, Slovenia. The consultation was to announce the European Robotics - Forum 2016 that would take place in Ljubljana on 21-23 March 2016.
- The R2T2 robotic space rescue mission allowed over 100 kids in 6 countries to operate a robot in scenarios akin to the movie “The Martian”.
- In Spain alone, there were almost 200 events, welcoming the public into research laboratories and discussing the opportunities and dilemmas for artificial intelligence.
- All over Finland, in cooperation with Code Week, various events have been looking into engaging and fun ways to learn and teach coding and robotics.
- Many regions of France have organised a wide variety of events around building start-ups in robotics, creative coding labs, open days, competitions and conferences.
- Over 50 events were organised in Germany with organisations such as KUKA, Schunk, Open Roberta, Hands on Technology opening their doors to the public.

Klagenfurt meets Robots: EU Robotics Week at AAU Klagenfurt

<https://blog.tewi.uni-klu.ac.at/eu-robotics-week-2015/>

The IEEE Student Branch organizes from 23 to 27 November, a networking event for all those who deal with robotics or look forward to do so.

Numerous research projects at the Alpen-Adria University, the Lakeside Science & Technology Park, in the Lakeside Labs GmbH and in the laboratories of Joanneum Research are dealing with robotics. IEEE Student Branch is now organizing a multi-day event, where different Robotics groups present their research and invite the audience to explore the fascinating development going on in their research labs. Part of the program also provides the computer science workshop at the Institute for Informatics Didactics, which is aimed at school pupils.

The workshop concludes on 27 November with a robotics competition: participants in 14 teams will build their own Lego robots and program them to solve the given task in the most efficient manner. The participants will be divided into the Junior League (under 18 years) and Senior League (over 18 years). The winners of the Junior League will eventually compete against the winners of the Senior League. The award ceremony will take place from 16:00 clock on Friday 27 of November.

If you would like to participate with your team in the Robotics Competition, please register here: <http://goo.gl/forms/7FFqvuwKfN>

The maximum number of teams that can participate is 14 due to technical limitations. The registration is therefore on a first come, first served basis and all teams will be informed about further details via e-mail.

Please note that only the LEGO kits will be provided and each team should bring at least one laptop on their own!

Details of the program will follow shortly.

KUKA

Mit KUKA eintauchen in die Welt der Robotik

http://www.kuka-ag.de/de/press/european_robotics_week/start.htm

Vom 23. November bis 29. November ist European Robotics Week

Wofür können Roboter eingesetzt werden und was können sie leisten? Wie sehen Roboter eigentlich wirklich aus? Diese und viele andere Fragen können während der European Robotics Week, die dieses Jahr vom 23. bis 29. November 2015 stattfindet, herausgefunden werden. Europaweit bietet die Themenwoche zahlreiche Veranstaltungen, um das Thema Robotik der Allgemeinheit näher zu bringen und besonders Schüler und Studenten für die Entwicklung und Forschung auf diesem Gebiet zu begeistern. Da darf die orangefarbene Welt der Robotik nicht fehlen. Bei KUKA finden zahlreiche Aktionen statt: So sind neben Schülern weiterführender Schulen auch kleinere Kinder in Lechhausen zu Gast, um von KUKAnern etwas über die Entwicklung, den Einsatz und die Bedeutung von Robotern zu lernen. Das können die Kleinen auch, wenn KUKAner während der Roboterwoche Schulen und Kindergärten besuchen, um Robotervorlesungen zu halten. Außerdem gibt es eine Abendveranstaltung, bei der Sie viel zum Thema Robotik und Industrie 4.0 erfahren

Robotervorlesung für Kinder

Kinder aufgepasst: Am Montag, den 23. November um 15 Uhr und am Freitag, den 27. November um 14.30 Uhr findet eine Robotervorlesung für Kinder zwischen acht und zwölf Jahren statt. Wie funktionieren Roboter und wofür braucht man sie? Diese Fragen beantworten Stephanie Bobert und Nadine Bender bei KUKA. Ein kleiner Roboter namens KUKA youBot assistiert ihnen dabei. Die Vorlesung dauert circa 1,5 Stunden und findet auf dem KUKA Gelände in der Zugspitzstraße 140 in 86165 Augsburg-Lechhausen statt. Die Eltern können die Zeit bei Kaffee und Kuchen im Betriebsrestaurant verbringen. Anmeldungen bitte bei Anke Dehne an redaktion@kuka.com oder telefonisch unter 0821/797-5251.

Veranstaltung für Jedermann und Jedefrau mit dem Titel: Influencing the Future – Industrie 4.0 bei KUKA

Einen spannenden Abend verspricht die Veranstaltung am Mittwoch, den 25. November um 19 Uhr bei KUKA in der Zugspitzstrasse 140 in Augsburg Lechhausen. Christian Tarragona, Leiter F & E Produktentwicklung, gibt Einblicke über die Verbindung zwischen Robotik und IT und Industrie 4.0. In seinem Vortrag erläutert er, wie sich die IT und die Roboter verändern werden, um die Fabrik der Zukunft mitzugestalten. Eingeladen sind alle, die mehr über Robotik und Automation erfahren wollen. Anmeldungen nimmt Anke Dehne unter redaktion@kuka.com oder 0821/797-5251 entgegen. Bitte haben Sie Verständnis dafür, dass die Teilnehmerzahl beschränkt ist.

Mitarbeiter besuchen Kindergarten und Schule

Niemand weiss besser über Roboter Bescheid als die KUKA Mitarbeiter. Deshalb besuchen die KUKAner weltweit Schulen und Kindergärten, um dort Roboterunterricht zu geben. So werden sie zu Botschaftern der Robotik

Über die European Robotics Week

Europaweit findet seit 2011 jährlich in der letzten Novemberwoche die European Robotics Week statt. Die europäische Forscher-Community euRobotics hat die Themenwoche ins Leben gerufen, um der Bevölkerung die Robotik näherzubringen und ihr die Bedeutung und die Vorteile von Automatisierung aufzuzeigen. Außerdem soll die qualitativ hochwertige, innovative Forschungs- und Entwicklungsarbeit europäischer Institute, Universitäten und der Industrie hervorgehoben werden. Ein weiteres wichtiges Ziel ist es, das Interesse junger Menschen für Naturwissenschaften zu wecken. Der Trend zur Automatisierung setzt sich weltweit fort, so dass in Zukunft noch mehr Fachleute im Bereich Robotik vor allem für Forschungs- und Entwicklungstätigkeiten benötigt werden. Weitere Informationen finden Sie unter www.robotics-week.eu.

UWE researchers to take centre stage at European Robotics Week 2015 – 11/18/2015

<http://info.uwe.ac.uk/news/uwenews/news.aspx?id=3223>

Will robots change the way people work, live and learn in the future? This question will be explored during European Robotics Week, which this year will be hosted by the Bristol Robotics Laboratory (BRL), a collaboration between UWE Bristol and the University of Bristol.

The week, which runs from 23 to 29 November, aims to connect the robotics community to the public and engage young people in fun and educational activities. Free events will be held in Bristol on Tuesday 24 and Wednesday 25 November.

Over the two days, there will be a public debate by leading European and UK experts on the role of robots in society, people will be able to take part in a full-day workshop on translating latest research in robotics to market and children will have the opportunity to visit the science centre, At-Bristol, to help researchers build 100 nanoparticle robots to "treat cancer".

Robots & Society Night on Tuesday 24 November at 7 pm will launch European Robotics Week. Dr Paul Bremner from UWE will give a live demonstration of a Nao robot, which will be followed by a debate about the role of robots in society with key experts from Europe and the UK.

On Wednesday 25 November, from 9 am to 5 pm, the Robots: From Imagination to Market event aims to bridge the gap between cutting-edge research in academia and robotic start-ups.

Starting with an introduction to robots in science fiction, people will have the opportunity to hear speakers talk about the latest state-of-the art research, hear from up-and-rising start-ups, and learn from successful companies. The day includes a tour of the BRL, an overview of legal and ethical questions, and a panel discussion on how to go from imagination to market.

The two-day robotics event will culminate on Wednesday 25 November from 6 to 8 pm with a Robot Buildathon. Children from 5- to 15-years-old will help researchers build 100 robots to treat artificial cancer cells. They will also interact with researchers, educators, and students at four robot stations. The stations will showcase a swarm of 200 coin-sized robots, Thymio and TiddlyBot robots they can program, and the latest robots from the Robogals team and students from Digimakers.

Professor Chris Melhuish, Director of the Bristol Robotics Laboratory (BRL), said: "We are delighted that Bristol is hosting European Robotics Week. BRL leads the way in Europe, bridging the gap between industry and the latest research in robotics, exemplified by our extensive research and development programmes, Robotics Innovation Facility (RIF), Technology Business Incubator, and UWE's co-located University Enterprise Zone, which specialises in robotics, medtech and related high tech areas.

"BRL is committed to research that has a positive impact on society, industry and the economy, and the European Robotics Week is an opportunity for us to share latest thinking, develop further links between research academia and industry, and enable the UK to compete more effectively."

The European Robotics Week is organised by euRobotics AISBL, and brings together hundreds of robotics events across Europe. Over the past five years, the event has attracted over 200,000 robot enthusiasts of all ages.

Members of the public can register for the free Bristol events at <http://brl.ac.uk/euroboticsweek> and follow the event on social media #ERW2015.
